ESCALON, CALIFORNIA

Years ago there began to dawn
A little town called Escalon,
The name denotes a stepping stone,
It lies in a fertile farming zone.
Here you'll find no better folk
With whom to visit, laugh, and joke;
They discard formality,
But practice hospitality.
Here the church and public school
Emphasize the Golden Rule.
In the town's little park
Birds are singing from daylight 'til dark.
Has a fine system of irrigation,
Near the great centers of recreation,
On the main line of the Santa Fe,
Yosemite Park's not far away.
It would fill you with delight
To be here on a summer's night,
As Luna sheds her silver sheen
O'er the valley of the San Joaquin.
